I took this opportunity to mention to Sen. Kilgore that we had enjoyed the closest relations with the Immigration Subcommittee in connection with private bills and that we would need his assistance in this matter in the new Congress as the Senator will presumably be Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. The Senator stated that we would work out a modus operandi in January which would assure us of complete cooperation; that he was considering taking over the Immigration Subcommittee himself as well as the full Committee chairmanship; and that he would want to have a point of contact in the Agency at all times for any problems which might arise. I assured the Senator that I would always be available to him as a point of contact. The Senator stated that it was his opinion that all intelligence should be under CIA and that he had always felt that that should be the case. He stressed the necessity for a strong central intelligence organization.
